By: News 8 Austin Staff

Pop singer and Houston native Beyonce Knowles will team up with Grammy winners Clint Black and Flaco Jimenez to promote music education.

The three have been named the 2004 honorary chairs of the Texas Music Project.

The project aims to help provide quality music education to Texas schools and raise awareness of the positive impact music education has on students.

The public awareness campaign will include an initiative to reach Latino students with Latino music.

Each artist will donate a song free of charge to the "Don't Mess With Texas Music" compilation CD series.

The first CD in the series featured 20 Texas artists including Willie Nelson, Stevie Ray Vaughn and Erykah Badu.
